Love is crazy and complex. This poetic tapestry of fun and mischief reminds us of that. When Derek and Jon are about to watch a football match between Denmark and England in their local pub, a power-cut shuts off the television so their attentions become focused on the shy, lovesick barman who needs help. Will Shakespeare's words help him to conquer his broken heart and find new love? A celebration of the Bard. That Theatre Company and Barry McKenna have a way of making Shakespeare accessible. Shakespeare died 400 years ago but his observations of human behaviour are timeless. This is a very hands-on, fun and interactive way to introduce newcomers and delight ardent lovers of Shakespeare.
