Our sexuality develops through our social life and is part of it. Except for porn, with all its economic interests, we don't have access to images of others or even ourselves having sex. We hardly have the language to describe our sexuality.

Discussing one night stands, love, family, affairs, we tend to forget that sex is basically a practice developed by each of us over time in contact with other people.

It's unique to each of us and something we all have in common. Wouldn't we like to exchange?
