Queers celebrates a century of evolving social attitudes and political milestones in British LGBT+ history, told by eight characters in a series of monologues and performed in the intimate confines of Galathea Kroen – an art deco-themed pub in Copenhagen's city centre.

Written by eight new and established writers including Mark Gatiss (Sherlock) and Brian Fillis (An Englishman in New York), Leftfield Theatre is extremely proud to challenge the medium of traditional storytelling and presents a wonderfully unapologetic spectacle of characters emerging from the dark to tell the extraordinary stories of queer Britons from the last 100 years.
