A performance with citizens at its center.

Extended Falls to Humanity is a civic-engagement, choreographic installation that takes place in a number of city halls. The piece addresses what we dream of and what we fear for the future. Before the presentation, Recoil visits the town hall and its citizens. Based on their stories and speculations about the future, the performance creates a choreographic, visual & musical experience of the individual's and the collective's presence in the political space.

The work is about people - and about being human in the community that hosts it. A work where the citizens are not just spectators, but also essential contributors. Use backdoor! English 29.05.

Originaltitel: Extended Falls to Humanity
