A large bowl of popcorn in the greedy hands of one of the three protagonists introduces the show. Visual Bluff is a kermesse in which theater roles will mingle, subvert and blur.

The mechanism starts from a format and then opens up to every possible development, based on the physiognomy of the public itself. A show that, in spite of the title, is anything but a bluff.

A sparkling exhibition. A show built between the caustic actors, politely involving, and an audience that can not fail to be dragged into the intelligent game.

Graciously supported by the Italian Institute of Culture.
