Following a sell-out international run, Ferodo Bridges present this immersive binaural experience, placing the audience in the middle of the action as a state-of-the-art sound design transports them to every location of the play and inside every character's head. A timely look at social coherence, gender roles and the survival instincts of a society in crisis.

"10 years have passed since a fiercely contagious virus spread among a major city's population, causing a mysterious white blindness and eventually, society's collapse. Now five survivors come forward to tell a story they were not allowed to share before."
