Based upon the novel by Susan Hill, The Woman in Black is a quietly shudder-some ghost story capable of chilling the flesh of even the most hardened horror fanatic.

Arthur (Adrian Rawlins), a mild-mannered young lawyer, is sent from London to Crythin Gifford to represent his firm at the funeral of a recently deceased client, a reclusive widow. While he is conducting an inventory of the woman's possessions at her isolated house, he has several terrifying encounters with a mysterious figure which not only threaten his sanity, but his very life.

Made into a feature film last year with Daniel Ratcliffe.
One of the longest running productions in London's West-End.
