APART Theatre presents 3' SQUARED a play in English about human relations and behaviors in spatially restricted spaces.

3' SQUARED is originally written, fast and dynamic with changes happening on stage. Creative, unconventional and many times surreal, aims not only to entertain but also to evoke emotions and make people reflect on the modern way of human co-existence and communication. The audience is invited to sit closely and observe, just like using a magnifying glass on the lives of the others and themselves. The stage becomes a restricted space where audience and actors come physically closer and both can be observed. Can this restricted space help us come emotionally closer as well?
