Frances and Loretta, two hard-up community care workers tasked with looking after an old man named Davy, who dies in the loo while on their watch. When they get wind of the fact that Davy was about to come into a few bob, the two women share a little lapse of honesty, which spirals them into a nightmare scenario.

This stellar comedy is written by Marie Jones whose works have consistently been produced on Broadway, New York and London's West End over the past 3 decades.
